New jobs could be coming to Lewis County after the announcement of a new industrial park in the Jane Lew area.

There's already one off that exit but this new one will be on 73 acres of a private development. Economic Development Authority Director Doug Parsons says there's already some potential tenants, both in the oil and gas industry and other arenas.

He says, "Developable land is difficult to find in West Virginia but we are blessed to have some outstanding opportunities in Lewis County. Several companies have moved into the region in the past 36 months and we look forward to working with others as they find a home here."
