Lewis County is encouraging residents to spread the word.

Six groups are teaming up for the county's second annual Ambassador Training.

Attendees will learn more about attractions and businesses in the county and how to spread the word about what Lewis County has to offer.

Organizers said they want to boost business in the county especially since some people may not know what their home has to offer.

"I know that a lot of folks who live within our county are not aware of some of the things we have to offer. Hopefully we'll be able to have more business referrals as a result of this training," said Sherry Lambert, of the Chamber of Commerce.

Space is limited to just 100 people, and is already filling up.

If you'd like to attend call the Lewis County Chamber of Commerce at 304-269-2608.
